

Lurie Daniel Favors, Esq.

Popular Speaking Topics

Black History & MLK Programs

Leadership Challenges for the 21st Century
Bring that College Home: The Role of Black Student Activism

Women's History Month

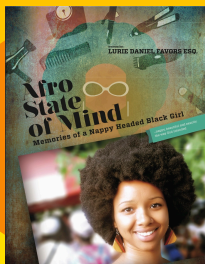

Afro State of Mind: The Evolving Politics of Hair, Color & Identity
Ain't I a Woman? The Fight for Racial & Gender Justice
Pretty Shouldn't Hurt: Beauty Standards & Racial Justice

Diversity in Business

True Diversity Values: From Rhetoric to Implementation
Different v. Deficient: The Power of Perspective

@AfroStateOfMind

Afro State of Mind: Memories of a Nappy Headed Black Girl is a book that traces Lurie's journey, from the hot comb, the Jheri curl, the perm and the Big Chop, all the way through her life as all-natural attorney defending high-profile in a justice system plagued with institutional racism. As she examines the history behind nappiness, Lurie discovers that Black hair, identity and skin color are international cultural experiences—ripe with personal and political power.

Who is Lurie Daniel Favors?

Lurie Daniel Favors is an attorney, author and a dynamic speaker. Her lectures and writings on race, feminism, and the intersections of history, racial politics and culture leave audiences and readers riveted and open to imagining new possibilities for racial, gender & social justice.

Lurie engages audiences at colleges, universities, schools, conferences, corporations and non profits. For information on how to bring her to your institution contact Sonya Crosby at Sonya@AfroStateOfMind.com.

"Lurie's work is phenomenal for tackling issues of identity and the impact of history & race on women and communities of color today. She is gifted at making that type of information accessible to the lay person. She is a very powerful & empowering speaker."

Dr. Wendy Williams, Professor, Long Island University

For Booking Info, email Sonya Crosby at Sonya@AfroStateOfMind.com
www.AfroStateOfMind.com